Overview

Take Ann Hui's 1987 film Starry Is the Night - the protagonist's ever-shortening hair mirrored Hong Kong's own identity crisis pre-1997 handover. Talk about split ends with political subtext! These movies turned salons into battlegrounds. One of the most recognisable faces of her time, Cheng Pei-pei stars as Golden Swallow, a female warrior sent to rescue her brother from kidnappers. This is a classic Hong Kong wuxia film during the golden. The "Girls with Guns" era of martial arts cinema, spanning the mid-1980s to early 1990s, was a bold chapter in Hong Kong action films. These movies broke new ground by placing fierce, skilled women at the forefront. The names of these macho fighting men have become synonymous with the word "badass," but they're not alone in that regard; unlike many other. Pearl Cheung Ling, a classic lady of Kung Fu with a difference, has starred in many classic Swordplay movies and dominated the classic swordplay movie scene from the 70s/80s era. She has stunning looks and is indeed a beauty queen of Kung Fu cinema. Pearl Cheung Ling is a marvelous actress with. While there are countless undeniably iconic male-led martial arts films, female-led ones are just as great, offering a unique perspective and an interesting female-gazed take on the genre. To celebrate empowering women in fiction, we look back the best martial arts movies with female leads, from.
